NUMBER 30

4TH ANNUAL REPORT

Of State Fire Marshal Nekirk Shows a Falling Off in the Number of Fires.

The Sun acknowledges the receipt of State Fire Marshal Nekirk's Fourth Annual Report, which is a very comprehensive document, exhaustive in its details. From its pages we gather the following statistics in regard to fires:

During 1909 there were 1,722 fires in Kentucky. The total loss was $2,496,561.27. During 1908 there were 2,018 fires in Kentucky, which entailed a loss of $2,666,613.49.

Mr. Nekirk is enthusiastic over the report and says that since he has been in charge of the office losses from conflagrations have been reduced almost to a minimum and today Kentucky's average for the number of fires and the amount of the annual losses is very low.

An interesting part of the report is a comparative statement which shows how persistent are those who are striving to cut down losses and abate incendiarism. Following is the table:

Fires reported in 1908	2,018
Decrease	296
Fires in 1909	1,722
Decrease	296
Incendiarism reported in 1908	145
Decrease	70
Loss from incendiarism fires, 1909	$214,253.30
Loss from incendiarism fires, 1908	$48,624.40
Decrease	$165,628.90

The 1,722 fires reported at the office of the State Fire Marshal came from 104 counties. Of these 70 were reported as of incendiary origin, 382 came from unknown and 1,270 accidental. The character of property destroyed or damaged is classified as follows:

Residences	907
Barns and outbuildings	197
Stores and other buildings	628

McELROY-- RANDOLPH

Miss Lydia McElroy and Mr. Chas. T. Randolph Married at The Presbyterian Church This Afternoon.

A beautiful wedding ceremony was performed this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Presbyterian church, whereby Miss Lydia Lee McElroy and Charles T. Randolph were made man and wife. Rev. R. E. C. Lawson, performed the ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated with potted plants, ferns and flowers, the altar appearing as a veritable bower of plants and flowers. The bride entered the church upon the arm of her brother, T. Irvine McElroy, who gave her in marriage. She was met at the altar by the groom who was attended by Harry O. Nan. The ceremony was performed beneath a floral arch from which was suspended a wedding bell. The ushers were Messrs. W. H. Wharton and J. Charles Greene and the ribbon girls were Susan McElroy and Wanda Campbell. The bride party marched to the altar to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Harry O. Nan. The ceremony was performed beneath a floral arch from which was suspended a wedding bell. The ushers were Messrs. W. H. Wharton and J. Charles Greene and the ribbon girls were Susan McElroy and Wanda Campbell. The bride party marched to the altar to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Harry O. Nan. The ceremony was performed beneath a floral arch from which was suspended a wedding bell. The ushers were Messrs. W. H. Wharton and J. The bride was beautifully dressed in white all over embroidered, and wore a large white rose hat. She carried a showy bouquet of bride's roses.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Randolph left for a northern trip, to be gone until August 1st, after which they will be at home at Clinton, Oklahoma, where Mr. Randolph is a prominent attorney.

Another Scrap.

Evelyn Mason and Zelma Peters, two superlatively young damsels, aged 14 and 16 years, engaged in a scrap in front of the colored restaurant last Thursday, during which each applied unbecoming and uncomplimentary epithets to the other and during which each was deprived by the other of a goodly portion of her wearing apparel. It was charged that one Tom Eselen, sometime soldier and now cobbler, was the bone of contention between the two Amazons, although they stoutly denied that they were fighting over him.

In police court each was given $5 and costs.

DECLINE OF THE NEGRO

Considerable Falling Off in Colored Children of School Age.

It is a significant fact that there has been a falling off since the emancipation made a year or two ago, of ten thousand in colored children of school age in Kentucky, while those of school age among the whites have increased as is as great or greater ratio. But the why and wherefore of this has not been given yet, nor is tangible theory has yet been advanced to explain the matter. History teaches that where the Caucasian has come in contact with the people of other races the latter have gradually diminished in number, and, as was the case of the Indian, have sometimes almost totally disappeared. Can it be possible that Time is destined to solve the race problem in the United States and that eventually the colored population will become but a remnant of what it is today? It has been asserted by some writers upon the subject that if the black man is segregated entirely to himself he will fall far behind in the march of progress as a race and finally lapse into barbarism. But, be this as it may, there is something significant in the fact that the figures show this unexpected falling off in colored children of school age in Kentucky.

Closing Exercises of St. Joseph's School.

The exhibition given by the children of St. Joseph's Catholic School at Fredericktown on last Thursday, June 23, was indeed an enjoyable and very interesting entertainment.

A program of most attractive numbers was carried through without a fault. Each grade had a performance and the comic plays and songs were delightfully rendered. Everyone who appeared on the stage seemed to be perfectly at home.

Notwithstanding the oppressive heat a large crowd was filling the hall and were very much pleased with the work of the boys and girls which were exposed for exhibition.

The medals and premiums awarded were a proof of the interest placed by the pupils in their studies.

A medal for scholarship was awarded to Magdolene Thompson, Lloyd Thompson, May Sheriff and Amy Aubrey.

A premium for Christian Doctrine was merited by Magdolene Thompson and Maud Mudd and drawn by Maud Mudd. Asia Simms obtaining an honorable mention. It is as pleasant to use as pure water, and it is delicately perfumed. It is a real toilet necessity.

OF VITAL PUBLIC INTEREST

A Timely Warning About Flies From the State Board of Health.

In every town and locality in the State many people have failed to heed the numerous warnings that have been issued in regard to flies. Attention has been called to the fact that they are one of the most dangerous to life and health with which mankind has to contend, being responsible for a large proportion of all cases of typhoid fever and diarrhoeal diseases of infants and many cases of tuberculosis and other contagious diseases.

They have caused thousands of deaths in the past and will continue their work of destruction until housekeepers awaken to the fact and inaugurate warfare that will result in their extermination.

This can be accomplished definitely and effectively. It requires only THE REMOVAL OF FILTH. FLIES BREED IN FILTH and in filth alone. Without filth there can be no flies. More than 90 per cent of them breed in stable manure and the balance in garbage, housewaste and other forms of refuse.

The fly season is at hand. Prompt action at this time may prevent many deaths during the summer and fall and a grave responsibility rests upon all health officers and other citizens who are called upon to enforce the law.

Immediate and thorough cleaning of premises should be effected and further accumulations of filth avoided. Stable manure should be kept in vaults or boxes screened or covered or frequently sprinkled with lime or kerosene and should be removed at least once a week. Garbage receptacles should be carefully covered and the contents sprinkled with unslaked lime or oil.

Privy vaults should be made fly-proof and their contents frequently sprinkled with lime.

In addition to the measures for the prevention of the breeding of flies, every effort should be made to prevent them from entering the house or having access to milk or other food.

All doors and windows especially those of the kitchen and dining-room should be screened.

Food exposed for sale should be screened and ordinances to this effect should be enacted and enforced.

Flies should be especially kept away from the sick and if one is discovered in the sick room it should be killed. Excreta and urine from the sick should be covered with fresh lime for an hour and then buried.

People who have cleaned their own premises should demand that their neighbors should do likewise and notify the Board of Health of any failures or refusals. It is important to remember that no one is safe unless every one else is.

The saving of life and suffering will amply repay for all the trouble and exertion.

EITHER MAN MUST KILL THE FLY OR THE FLY WILL KILL THE MAN.

In Memoriam.

Lena Hamilton Barber, who died, December 26, 1909.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

Oh, blessed sleep, nor let me break thy tears, nor prayers, nor love's sweet sake. Oh, perfect rest, that knows no pain, no thrills, no thrill of heart or brain, Oh, peace divine, beyond all speech, That only the pure, through dying, reach.

We weep for the days that will come no more; For the light that has flown from our hearts; For the missing step of gentle grace; For a tender voice and a loving face, But not for the soul whose goal is won, Whose perfect joy has just begun.

Sale of Valuable Property

The residence property situated on Main Cross St., and which was owned by the estate of the late Martin Simpson, was sold last Saturday by Judge I. H. Thurman, executor of the estate, and was purchased by T. P. O'Bryan for $4,000. The residence is a nice frame building and the lot among the most desirable located in the city. The property is now rented by Mrs. Ida Clarkson, who conducts a boarding house.

Saved From Awful Death.

How an appalling calamity in his family was prevented is told by A. D. Donohoe of Fayetteville, N. C. R. F. D. No. 8. "My sister had consumption," he writes, "she was very thin and pale, had no appetite and seemed to grow weaker every day, as all remedies failed. I tried Dr. King's New Discovery, was tried, and so completely cured her, that she has not been troubled with a cough since. It's the best medicine I ever saw or heard of." For coughs, colds, laryngitis, croup, hemorrhage, all bronchial troubles, it has no equal. $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Haydon & Robertson.

SURPRISE FOR BEN JOHNSON

Large Crowd Gathers in Bardstown to Greet the Popular Congressman.

An unusual outpouring of his friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Hon. Ben Johnson on Saturday evening, June 18th, and greeted him on his return from Washington. He had come unexpectedly to everyone except his family and it was not discovered that he was at home until late in the evening, when a large crowd gathered in Bardstown, and in buggies, autos and carriages, attended by a brass band, the crowd hurried to the home of Mr. Johnson. "Uncle" Taylor Clark, of Balltown, who happened to be in Bardstown, heard of the contemplated surprise, mounted a gray horse and led the crowd and being recognized by Mr. Johnson, was met in the front yard and welcomed by him into his hospitable home. An informal reception was given upon the front porch, where Mr. Johnson, in a brief but touching speech, expressed his appreciation of the thoughtfulness and good wishes of his friends. The band rendered a number of patriotic pieces and the crowd was as greatly pleased with the meeting as was Mr. Johnson by so genuine a surprise.

It was announced during the evening that the appropriation bill carried $65,000 for the public building in Bardstown and that the appropriation would certainly be made if any one else received an appropriation for a similar purpose. The gathering was one of the many expressions of the general good feeling for Congressman Johnson, who has accomplished so much for his country and the Fourth Congressional District.

His friends believe he is entitled to anything he wants and the people of his home section delight to honor him. Should he be nominated for Governor of Kentucky his majority in Nelson county would be overwhelming, as he would receive the support of the large body of voters, regardless of party affiliation. We are enthusiastically for him; he is worthy of the nomination and should receive it without opposition because of his eminent qualifications and party services in the past.—Bardstown Standard.

Death of a Good Woman.

Mrs. Nannie A. Bottom died at her home near Brumfield early last Thursday morning after an illness of only about a week with pneumonia. She was 62 years of age, and a woman who possessed many beautiful attributes of mind and character. The funeral services took place Saturday morning at the Christian church, Perryville, of which she had been a consistent member for more than a quarter of a century. Mrs. Bottom was the wife of "Squire" R. B. Bottom, who is a member of the Boyle County Fiscal court.

Has Narrow Escape.

While hauling logs for Everard Abel, who recently purchased a portion of the Tom Johnson farm, near Lebanon, Clay Powell, a colored man, met with an accident that, for the time being, made him appear as dead as he will ever appear this side of the grave. At the time the accident occurred four men were loading a log on the wagon when a skid slipped and the log, twenty-four inches in diameter, fell and caught the negro under it. With the skid across his face and the log across his abdomen, his co-laborers, trembling with fright, were sure it meant certain death. But they hastened to lift the log from his body and after a brief effort Powell was released. With every sign of death, he was carried home and a physician called. Shortly the negro showed signs of resuscitation and regained consciousness in about two hours. Last Saturday, two days later, he came to town and was as well apparently as before the log struck him.—Lebanon Enterprise.

ELECTION OF U. S. SENATORS

First Advocated by the Grange—Sentiment Now General.

The Grange, as an organization, first advocated the election of United States Senators by direct vote. This sentiment has now become so general that there is no one who attempts to give any argument why it should not be. The people should be allowed to select all their representatives. Various legislatures have passed resolutions favoring the change and the people are demanding it and yet no change. One of the most bitter contests was waged in Illinois during the last session of the legislature in the selection of a United States Senator. The people of the State had indicated their choice at the primary, but their expressed wish was disregarded. Now the charge is openly made that votes were bought to secure the election of the successful candidate.

It is a disgrace to our civilization that any such acts or measures should be resorted to that even arouse suspicion that any lawmaker would think of making his vote a thing of barter and sale. Investigations are going on; let us hope they may be unbiased and thorough that the truth may be known. The terms of thirty senators expire in March next, and the various legislatures will elect their successors. Now is the time for the people to get in effective work.—Southern Farmers' Gazette.

That submarine vessels can make extended trips is shown by a recent experience with the Viper, owned by the United States, which, in command of a midshipman, ran 457 miles, from a point off the North Carolina coast to Annapolis. Hitherto no such attempt has been made. Of course, the voyage was made on the surface, as submarines dive only when such action is considered necessary. But that the Viper could go safely for such a distance, unaccompanied by any convoy, tends to show that such craft are capable of more independent service than was supposed.

MAN SHE LOVED MARRIED.

Miss Anna Anderson Swallows Car-bolic Acid When He Dared Her.

Louisville, Ky.—"I tried to kill myself because the man I loved had married another woman and there was nothing left in life for me," said Miss Anna Anderson, of Zanesville, O., as she was carried into the city hospital after she had taken a large dose of arsenic.

When seen at the hospital Miss Anderson said she came to Louisville and immediately began a search for Fisher. Shortly after she went to his home. In answer to her ring at the doorbell Mrs. Fisher went to the door and asked what she wanted. "I told her that I wanted Gus," said the girl at the hospital, "and she asked me if I was married. I refused to tell her this and we started to argue. Just then Gus came to the door and spoke to me very kindly. 'I started to tell you to him, and finally I said that, since he was married, I was going to take poison. As soon as I said this he replied, 'I dare you to,' and with that I took a bottle of arsenic from my pocket and swallowed its contents."

DIED FROM INJURIES.

Auto of Glidden Tourists Cause of Accident.

Frankfort, Ky.—Marie Hedrick, wife of Frank Hedrick, of Millville, who was fatally injured by being thrown from a survey on the Versailles pike, died at the residence of her brother-in-law in Ann street. The body was taken to the family residence at Millville and the funeral and burial was held on Thursday.

The testimony of those who were near the scene of the accident indicates that after the horse became frightened at the passing automobile and began to run Mrs. Hedrick jumped from the survey, or, in attempting to get out, fell from the vehicle and struck the back of her head on the side of the car, fracturing the skull. As soon as Dr. Demaree and Minish made an examination of her injury they announced that her case was hopeless and that she could live but a few hours. She never regained consciousness.

County Attorney Wiley Marshall made every effort to find out who were the occupants of the car that frightened the horse and whether the machine was in name, but was unable to secure any definite information and consequently sent no telegrams ordering the arrest of any of those in the Glidden tour.

CURTIS BREAKS RECORD.

Louisville, Ky.—Before a crowd of more than 10,000 persons, Glenn H. Curtis broke his own world's record for a quick start from an airplane. From the instant his helpers released the machine to start it was four and one-fifth seconds until the aviator left the ground. His previous record was five and one-fifth seconds.

The first climb of a definite aeroplanes that the great crowd of spectators witnessed took place when "Bud" Mara, Curtis' associate, attempted to make a flight in his machine, the "Skyhawk." The operator was at no time able to reach a height greater than 20 or 30 feet, but his machine slipped about 100 feet, and several times as he traversed a distance of half a mile over a grassy field.

Lexington, Va.—Final commencement exercises, closing the one hundred and twentieth session at Washington and Lee university, were held in Lee Memorial chapel. Milton, Ky.—Miss Ellen Hogland, 92 years old, the oldest woman in Carroll or Trimble counties, died at the home of her nephew, Dr. P. E. Hampton, with whom she lived. Miss Hogland was born June 21, 1818, on a farm three miles from this place.

BETTER GRADES OF LEAF IN DEMAND.
Sales Show Tendency To Take Up Good Tobaccos.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—Reporting on the Hopkinsville tobacco market, a broker has this to say:
"Owing to small stocks of leaf, sampling and sales show considerable falling off, sales amounting to about 150 bbls. This was about all leaf, as lugs and low leaf are not in as much demand as the better grades of leaf." Quotations for the week range as follows:
Lugs—Low $6 to $6.50, common $2.50 to $7.50, medium $7.50 to $8.50, good $8.50 to $9.
Leaf—Low $8.50 to $9.50, common $10 to $11.50, medium $12 to $13.50, good $14 to $15.50.

LAND IN MOUNTAINS.

Storm Near Bowen Causes Balloon to Descend.

Winchester, Ky.—H. E. Honeywell and William F. Assmann, two aeronauts en route to the Atlantic coast from St. Louis, descended in the mountains of Kentucky, six miles south of Bowen, just five minutes before a severe storm of hail and lightning.

The howling wind uprooted trees and the electric storm played havoc with telegraph poles and wires. They were traveling at the rate of thirty miles an hour. It took all day to get the balloon out of the mountains with a four-horse team. His trip of 657 miles traveled was uneventful other than a zigzag course taken.

The journey of the aeronauts ended here a sly had no means to inflate the balloon to proceed.

FESTAL WEEK.

Famous Old Nazareth Attended by Many Former Pupils.

Nazareth, Ky.—Many former pupils and friends were guests for the old Nazareth academy—Nazareth. The 15th annual alumnae meeting and the 90th commencement exercises were the occasions which brought to the institution numerous visitors from the four corners of the United States, especially Kentucky, and the far south.

The exercises of the week were opened by the president of the Alumnae association, Mrs. D. D. Phillips, of Nashville, Tenn., who made an eloquent address of greeting to the graduates and the women in attendance. This was followed by the alumnae address, delivered by Miss Geary, of Lexington.

Reports were made from the branch alumnae, in Lexington, Covington, Union county, and the Presentation academy, Louisville. All these records of active work and interest.

FAMILY VAULT.

New Contains the Body of Colonel Latham Anderson.

Kuttawa, Ky.—The body of Col. Latham Anderson arrived from Santa Barbara, Cal., and was interred at Vista Ridge cemetery, being placed in the family vault. He was a son of the late Charles Anderson, former governor of Ohio, and brother-in-law of the late John H. Bush, who was having occurred within one hour of Col. Anderson's death.

Col. Anderson, in his younger days, made extensive surveys in the south-west for the government, and Kit Carson was among the Indian fighters composing his guard.

When the civil war was declared he graduated from West Point and entered service in the Union Army, where he won military honors as brigadier general.

Over 50 people were in the church, but no one was seriously hurt. M. G. Buckner, of Owensboro, who was conducting the meeting; South Hawkins, the pastor, and E. R. Street, were considerably bruised and torn about the face and head.

Columbus, O.—Maj. E. F. Menoher, of the United States army, won the cup offered by Gov. Harmon for officers' charges in the Columbus horse show. Consolator, a beautiful chestnut saddle owned by Langhorn Tabb Anderson, of Maysville, Ky., captured two blue ribbons when ridden by Mr. Anderson and by Miss Ellen Rasmussen, of Chicago.

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Richard Sloan, of Arizona, secretary of the Conference of Governors, was in Frankfort this week to attend the meeting of the committee selected to choose the time and place for holding and mapping out a program for the next Conference of Governors.

Frankfort, Ky.—With the exception of the mine disaster at Browder there were no serious accidents in mining in Kentucky of any consequence during the present year, so that Kentucky leads all the states in the union in safety of its mines. The tonnage of coal mined shows a favorable increase in 1909 over that of 1908 by the report made by C. J. Norwood, chief mine inspector. The largest gain is in Eastern Kentucky. The output of commercial coal for the calendar year 1909 amounted to 10,296,145 short tons.

EDITORS GET A CORDIAL WELCOME AT MIDDLESBORO

Kentucky Press Association Members Enjoyed Hospitality of Middlesboro—Mayor Helburn Gave Keys of the City to the Assembled Hosts.

Middlesboro, Ky.—Two hundred strong, including wives and daughters, the members of the Kentucky Press association arrived here. The out-of-town purveyors of news and opinions were met at Corbin by a local committee from the Commercial club and these men saw to it that the visitors had no worries about baggage or hotel accommodations.

While most of the incomers were make a short talk. He limited the executive of the state metropolis to three minutes. Evidently Mr. Head was as much surprised as any person who heard the announcement. He tried to get away, but there was no use. They led him up to the front.

Mayor Head, of Louisville, told his audience that it was the first time he had visited Middlesboro in 20 years and marveled at its growth. He said that it was the desire of his city to hand in hand with every municipality in the state for the betterment of conditions and the upbuilding of the greatest state in the union.

The duties of a day in the special trip to the home of Senator Daniel C. Swab at Hardardt, Tenn., where an elaborate luncheon was served to 175 guests, and the university of the Bryson mountain mines in coal cars. Returning to Middlesboro, the newspaper folk hurriedly got dinner and began anew the gay revel.

The whole town turned out in its best clothes. Practically every business house was a complete covering of flags and bunting. The main streets were strung with multi-colored electric bulbs. The townspeople did their best to act as guides and the university courtesies which were extended, helped to make a good time.

The reception, which was in charge of a women's committee, was followed by a band concert and liquid refreshment and the revelers made for the ballroom at the Middlesboro Hotel, where the first dance was tripped until the early hours.

Among the prominent members of the association who were here were: T. C. Underwood, of the Hopkinsville News, editor of the organization; D. M. Bowman, of the Versailles Sun, secretary; and Col. W. B. Haldeman, of Louisville, responded.

President Underwood paid a high tribute to the mountain people and their progressiveness. When the session adjourned a special train was in waiting to take the party to the Bryson coal mines and to enjoy a luncheon at the bungalow of State Senator Daniel Cooper Swab, of Tennessee.

President Tom Underwood, smiling as usual, made his annual address, after remarking that one of the things an executive officer has to submit to is making "annual address."

Under cover of much wit and fun, the president gave the state editors much to think about regarding the editorial stories that make their way into the metropolitan press about the unsavory and bloodthirsty character of the mountain section.

Mayor Helburn paid a high tribute to the press and the people of South-eastern Kentucky. He laid down the lines of progress and referred to the unsurpassed resources of this section of the state.

Col. W. B. Halde-man, chairman of the executive committee of the association, responded on behalf of the editors, thanking the mayor and the citizens for their hospitality, and the warm welcome they had shown the newspaper men. He said that while the welcome might not have been so extensive as that accorded Roosevelt in that memorable "Hack from Elba" scene that was pulled off in New York the other day, it surely was quite as earnest and probably more heartfelt.

Then came a surprise to the most of them in the hall. Mr. Underwood, announced that Mayor William O. Head, of Louisville, would make a short talk. He limited the executive of the state metropolis to three minutes. Evidently Mr. Head was as much surprised as any person who heard the announcement. He tried to get away, but there was no use. They led him up to the front.

IN A SERIOUS CONDITION.

A Case of Terrible Kidney Trouble.

Henry Palmer, Cole and Walnut Sts., Harrisville, O., says: "My kidney trouble was caused by hard work and exposure in the army. The awful pain across my back gradually became more severe and I was in constant misery. My feet and hands were swollen to twice their natural size. The kidney secretions were in a terrible condition for months I voided what seemed to be clear blood. I became so dizzy everything seemed to whirl. My condition was alarming when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Before long I improved and was soon strong and well."

ROUND ABOUT — THE STATE —

MOST IMPORTANT NEWS GATHERED FROM ALL PARTS OF KENTUCKY

Indications Are for Fine Crop.
Though Some Speak of Shortage.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—Wheat harvest began in this county and will be in full blast all of this week. The wheat has ripened slowly, which is considered altogether in its favor, and, in many instances, the early cutting was only of portions of a field where the grain had ripened faster than the rest. The crop this year is expected to prove a good one. Some predict a shortage in the yield, owing to small heads, but an extra fine quality of the grain. The prevailing opinion, though, seems to be that the yield and quality will both be fully up to, if not in excess of, the average.

The weather has been ideal for cutting the wheat and promising a good crop this year is full, as in the southern portion of the state the broad fields are truly in appearance.

Other crops are looking well, too. The rainy season continued so long that it was feared corn, tobacco, wheat, clover and everything else would be seriously damaged, but the moisture held up just in time and was succeeded by sunny days and June hot weather. The conditions have been righted, with the result that all vegetation is improving wonderfully. Gardens, too, were decidedly backward until the warmer weather came, most of the vegetables not having developed and produced as they should.

FAYETTE COUNTY TEACHERS.

Many Attend Educational Association Meeting at Henderson.

Lexington, Ky.—About thirty teachers from this city attended the 39th annual meeting of the Kentucky Educational association which convened at Henderson for a three days' session.

State university, Transylvania university, the city schools, the county schools and Hamilton college were well represented on the program for the occasion.

Among the Lexington educational men and women who addressed the meeting are:

State University—Prof. Louis F. Snow, Prof. A. M. Miller, Prof. Geo. Roberts, Mrs. Florence Offutt Stout, Prof. W. H. Hueston, Prof. T. T. Jones and Prof. E. Paul Anderson. Transylvania University—President R. H. Crossfield, Prof. T. B. McCarroll, Prof. Henry Lloyd, Miss Margaret Moore.

The county schools were represented by Mrs. Nannie G. Faulconer, while Miss Anna Dean, supervisor of physical training in the city schools, addressed the association.

RAILROAD WRECK.

Train 34 for Cincinnati Leaves Track Near Falmouth.

Falmouth, Ky.—Train No. 34, north-bound, for Cincinnati, was wrecked at Catawba, about three miles north of here. The engine in passing over, it is thought, spread the rails, as the engine did not leave the track, but every car except the last one was derailed.

The baggage car and mail car were turned completely over and the end of the smoking car was mashed in and the trucks torn from all three. The track was torn up for a distance of about 150 yards and not a rail or tie was left on the road.

There were three injured, none of them badly, however. Charles Perry, mail clerk at Butler, was hurt badly, although his car turned completely over the door happened to be open and a ditch and he escaped.

DESCENDANT OF POE

And of Sixth Vice President Fatally Injured in a Runaway.

Louisville, Ky.—Injuries suffered when thrown from a carriage caused the death of Mrs. Thomas J. Batman, wife of a wealthy wholesaler and liquor dealer, descendant of Edgar Allan Poe and grandniece of Daniel D. Tompkins, sixth vice president of the United States. Mrs. Batman, who had been here for some time, fainted while driving.

With no one to guide him, the horses made a sharp turn, upsetting Mrs. Batman and throwing her against a tree.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Batman is survived by eight children.

Louisville, Ky.—The balloon Centennial, piloted by E. Eugene Honeycutt and William F. Asman, continuing for the Lahm cup, passed over three points in Kentucky, Shepherdsville, Richmond and Irvine. It was headed eastward and was going at a good rate of speed. When it passed over Shepherdsville, 30 miles southeast of Louisville, it was 3,000 feet high, and a note was dropped by the two men in the basket. The Centennial is owned by the Aero Club of St. Louis. It started on its journey last week.

GOVERNORS DRIVE THROUGH STORM

Executives of Arizona, Kentucky, Missouri and South Carolina Have Exciting Ride.

Frankfort—Through one of the worst electrical and hail storms which has hit Central Kentucky in many years, an automobile, containing four governors and the wives of two of them, dashed from Versailles to Frankfort, and twice the lightning struck within 20 feet of the machine. Once it struck the rails of the interurban line just this side of Versailles and knocked up a shower of sparks over the automobile as it whirled past. A moment later it struck the road just ahead of the machine.

The four governors in the car were: Governor Hadley, of Missouri; Governor Sloan, of Arizona; Governor Ansel, of South Carolina, and Governor Willson, of Kentucky. Mrs. Willson and Mrs. Hadley were also in the car. In addition to the driver, they had been in Lexington and Fayette county, also spending a good portion of their time at Elmdorf and Castleton.

When they started home, and when just outside of Versailles, they were struck by the storm. Lightning was almost continuous, and it played about the automobile from the time they left Versailles until they reached Frankfort.

The governors say that it was the wildest ride they had ever taken. They reached the governor's mansion unhurt and not even wet, as the curtains of the car were drawn, and this protected them.

The four governors met this week to select the time and place for holding the conference of governors in November. A program was mapped out, and the visiting governors were left Frankfort for their homes.

MERGER FORMED.

Agricultural College and Experiment Station.

Lexington, Ky.—A step, which it is believed will be of great importance to the agricultural interests of the state and also of vast benefit to Kentucky State university, was taken when the Agricultural college of the university and the Kentucky experiment station were united under one head and Prof. M. A. Scovell, who for many years has been director of the experiment station, was placed in charge of the combined institutions.

This action was consummated by the committee recently appointed by the executive committee of the university and the board of control of the experiment station, and was formally approved by both bodies. By the action taken the Agricultural college, in a sense, absorbs the experiment station, which, although its organization will remain unchanged, becomes a branch of the college, which is divided into the following departments:

First—The experiment station, department of research. Post graduate work.

Second—Department of teaching. Undergraduate work.

Third—Department of extension work, covering short courses, farmers' meetings, conventions at the college, co-operative experiments and demonstrations on farms and orchards, farm and soil surveys, lectures in schools, correspondence relating to the agricultural college proper, popular publications, exhibits at fairs, demonstrative and illustrative work.

MEETING OF GOVERNORS.

Frankfort and Louisville to Entertain Executives.

Frankfort, Ky.—Frankfort gets the next meeting of the House of Governors, on November 25, the meeting of nearly every state in the union, including President William H. Taft and Col. Theodore Roosevelt, will be in Frankfort to attend the conference of governors, and they will be here for one day and one night and then will go to Louisville for the remainder of the conference.

The time and place for the meeting was selected by the committee of three governors who had the power to act. Gov. Hadley, of Missouri; Gov. Ansel, of South Carolina, and Gov. Willson were the three governors into whose hands the other governors put the question of fixing the time and place for holding the meeting. The committee met here to prepare for the business of the conference and to map out a tentative program for the conference.

TRAVELING MEN'S DAY.

Paducah, Ky.—October 1, the last day of the fall fair, has been designated "Traveling Men's Day" by the fair association, and an effort will be made to get 20,000 visitors here on that day. The association expects to have 10,000 traveling salesmen as its guests. Post A. of this city, is boasting the affair, advertising "Traveling Men's Day."

SNAILS IN TOBACCO.

Carlisle, Ky.—The farmers of Central Kentucky are up against an altogether new proposition. After having trouble with cut worms cutting down the tobacco plants, both in the beds and fields, the snail began working havoc among the tobacco fields here. One farmer reports that over one acre of tobacco was cut down by snails. Other reports show much damage done. This is the first time that any of the tobacco raisers have experienced any trouble with snails.

In Maiden Hair Fern

table, which is a feature of every summer cottage living room. The table is usually of some dark wood and set with dollies and center pieces instead of a large white cloth.

Sometimes a small linen cloth is used, but usually the dollies are liked best, as they are delightfully dainty in appearance. One of the coolest and most charming combinations for the summer table linen is green and white, and no lovelier set of dollies could be imagined than one of fine, white linen buttonholed in scallops in a pale silvery green frons and decorated at intervals with sprays of maiden hair fern. The design given may be transferred to the linen by means of carbon paper or a stamping outfit. It would be much less work and very pretty and unusual to have only one spray of the fern on each dolly instead of several, as very simple things are best in the summer. Three sprays of fern are given, one large one for the plate and tumbler dollies.

To embroider the fern use wash silks of different shades of green. Embroider in long-and-short stitch and Kensington outline for the stems.

FERN EMBROIDERY.

One of the Prettiest Summer Decorations for the Vacation Season Table Linen.

In nearly every summer home the living room is used as dining-room, the meals being served on the center table.

NEAT IDEAS IN TUB DRESS

Costumes That Will Be Just the Thing When the Really Warm Weather is With Us.

The first costume is in old blue linen; three tucks are made at the side of both skirt and bodice, the latter has one wide tuck standing out over the shoulder. Buttons in sets of four trim both bodice and skirt. The cuffs are tucked all over, so is the collar band.

Skirt had turned up at the side and trimmed with large flowers.

Materials required: 7 yards 42 inches wide, 1/2 dozen buttons.

The other design, although made in linen for summer wear, is a style that may be reproduced just as well in any firm woolen material.

The color of our model is sky blue; in style, it is a semiprincess, the front forming a panel.

The skirt is trimmed with a band of wide broderie anglaise, from under which the linen is cut away. The yoke is of piece embroidery, and is outlined with a fold of darker blue linen under the edge. The oblong pieces of embroidery form a further trimming.

Fit of pale blue fancy straw trimmed with a feather mount.

Materials required: 7 yards 40 inches wide, 3 yards wide embroidery, 1/2 yard piece embroidery for yoke, 1/2 yards narrower insertion.

Strawberry Face Lotion.

A good vegetable lotion to soften and whiten the skin is made by boiling a quart of strawberries, mashing them through a sieve, then adding two table-spoons of strong vinegar to each quart of berries. Let it stand until it draws plenty of juice and strain through a fine muslin. Bottle tightly and keep in a cool place.

AUTOMATIC SYSTEM SCORES ON RIVALS IN TELEGRAPH TEST

FLASHES 1000 WORD STORY OF TAFT'S SPEECH TO NEWSPAPERS
IN ONE MINUTE—HAND TRANSMITTED STORY CAME ALONG HALF HOUR
LATER.

At the Farmers' Convention held recently in St. Louis, the Teleport Automatic Telegraph Co. pulled off an interesting little "scoop" on its rivals in connection with the speech of President Taft. Before the newspaper men present got outside the building a thousand word story of the President's reception and speech at the convention of the N. Y. Legislature he said Taft's hall was in Chicago, Indianapolis, Springfield, Terre Haute and every other point in the Middle West to which the automatic system extends. With it went a special message of greeting to the farmers of America given by Mr. Taft for transmission over the automatic lines.

The feat was interesting, as demonstrating the possibilities of the automatic system in connection with rapid press work. In one minute from its start, the 1000 word story was in the cities named, complete. From half to a full hour later the press association reports sent by hand telegraph began to come along.

This achievement fulfills the claims made for the Teleport recently by Professor Royce Hittcock, former Curator of the Department of Science and Industries of the Smithsonian Institution. Testifying before a committee of the N. Y. Legislature he said Taft's 8,000 word story of his North Pole Discovery could have been sent from Labrador to the New York Times in ten minutes by this system instead of the three days it consumed in being transmitted by hand.

The Teleport transmits from 1000 to 2000 words a minute, doing over any one wire, the same volume of business time over 65 wires operated by the Morse hand method of transmission, still largely used throughout the country.

In the States where the system is commercially operating it is offering a revolution with its rates of a quarter, half, and one cent a word regardless of time or distance.

Important extensions of the Teleport, it was said today on good authority, will be opened shortly between Chicago, Indianapolis and Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Louisville, and other cities in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. The action last week of the Senate committee on the District of Columbia, favorably reporting the bill to admit the system to the National Capital presages the early completion of its line between New York and Washington.

To Make Table Cloths Last.

Table linen is expensive. It costs more today than it did five years ago. When it begins to wear in holes, to come from the wash with worn spots that tell how soon it will be no good, no wonder the housewife despairs. Cheap, common scraps full of caustics that eat the linen are greatly to blame. Expensive laundry soap is an enemy to dirt and stains and a friend to the table linen. Get two five cent cakes; try it, and if it does not surprise and amaze you, the makers will return your money.

WHERE ARE WE AT?

Under the caption, "Bribery in Illinois and elsewhere," the Louisville Post comments editorially, in a recent issue, as follows:

"Bribery investigation in Illinois proceeds with vigor. At Springfield Saturday indictments were returned against two representatives and four promoters of bribery. These cases relate to a fund raised among the fishermen to defeat the State Fish Commission bill.

"One is appalled at the revelations of corruption. We are called on to respect the law, and pay due deference to the powers that be, yet we see that laws are made by bribery and corruption and that under the force of enabling bills for the benefit of the people men are robbed of their property, the State deprived of its power and privileges.

"What is done in Illinois is confessed by done in Pittsburgh, in the capital of Pennsylvania at Harrisburg, in Albany, N. Y., and at Frankfort, Ky.

"There never was a time when the people of this country needed vigilance, courage, independence, patriotic devotion to their own government as they need these qualities to-day.

"They have been betrayed by their own representatives. They have been sold out by party leaders. They have been bought and butchered by agents of the varied capitalistic organizations.

"While the different States are considering crimes traced to greed, there is an explosion in the Senate of the United States, to which body men open a way by the use of corruption funds. There (in the Senate) is the source of all legislative power. There can be throttled every measure drawn in the interests of the people and there, according to Senator Gore, the lobbyist piles accusation upon accusation, offering bribes to the Senators to consent to the robbery of the Indian through tracts, attorney's fees and the development of mineral lands.

Endorsing the above the Sun believes that this nation never stood in greater danger from unblinking graft and corruption in high places than it does to-day. The recent scandals in connection with political corruption, wide-spread and infamous, have thoroughly aroused the people and they are voicing their displeasure with no uncertain sound. Reform should be the party slogan. Reform, thorough, comprehensive and unflinching, until this Augean stable is cleansed and purified. To the press of the country belongs the task of sounding the warning and it is to be hoped that, without reference to party affiliation, it will be both clamorous and instructive. For more political righteousness and a redemption of our country from the mucus of this hydra-headed monstrosity—graft.

In another column of the Sun there is published some data taken from the annual report of the State Fire Marshal, which is both interesting and instructive. The information furnished is also very gratifying inasmuch as the report shows a marked decrease in the number of fires in 1909 and likewise a decided decrease in financial loss. This Department is indeed a boon to Kentucky and since its establishment has done a great work. Mr. Neikirk, our fellow townsman, is now Fire Marshal and we feel safe in saying that no State in the Union is there a more faithful and useful Fire Marshal.

In our search for news items during the past week we were lucky enough to discover another prize fish story. Our friend, Uncle Billy Crume, who resides on a picturesque place overlooking Chaplin river, in the northwestern part of this county, is sponsor for this prize story and has added distinction to him self as well as another page to the fishing history thereby. During the recent rains, which swelled the stream considerably, Uncle Billy's favorite trap played a pleasant prank upon its owner by housing within its formidable walls a monster catfish, that bluffed its captors out at first. However, thinking "discreetly the better part of valor," he proceeded to procure and after a tussle that was as exciting as tiresome, the fish was landed safely, weighing many inches in length, with a head as large as the largest dinner plate and a body that was approximately 33 inches in circumference. This is the largest catch recorded from Chaplin river. Uncle Billy says he thinks that he will make a fine basket out of the fish's head and save his ribs bones for walking sticks.

Through the Pantry Window

By CLAUDINE SISSON

On a certain cold October afternoon, which was brightened only by the flare of crimson leaves on all the maples and the ever-present tangles of aster and golden rod along the bushy banks, Elsie turned her horse in at a rickety picket gate and dismounted before the porch of a tiny, shabby, neglected house.

Tears came to Elsie's eyes, as she thought of the dead woman who had animated it with her kindly presence. She felt that she would like to go in and look about and try to imagine to what the abandoned rooms and people to whom the gentle figures that had once frequented them.

The thin old horse, a freckled gray from the lively stable in town, was pulling at the reins in an effort to get his nose to the grass. Elsie sought for some place to make him secure and remembered the little barn. If the door was not nailed up she could put him in there.

The door was not nailed up. It slid open easily and she led the horse in and tied him to the stall which had held only colts and hay and dust for a long time. A little horse remained in one corner. She carried it to the horse, who received it as eagerly as if it had been the freshest of fodder. Then she went to the house.

It was locked securely. She went about trying the shutters. At last she found one partly off the hinges—blown off by a high wind, no doubt. She swung it clear and put her hand to the window underneath. To her surprise, it raised as she pushed it.

She seemed to hear a familiar voice saying in her ear: "The hatch on that pantry window is here for the little horse to go to. It is one of the best things I've got. It is one of the best things I've got. It is one of the best things I've got."

She seemed to hear a familiar voice saying in her ear: "The hatch on that pantry window is here for the little horse to go to. It is one of the best things I've got. It is one of the best things I've got. It is one of the best things I've got."

Aunt Hope's dear voice! Aunt Hope's own remembered words! And this was the pantry window. Elsie turned her horse in at a rickety gate.

looked in. The tiny place was neat, the cupboard doors shut; an old red spider hung against the wall. The window sill was only a few inches high from the ground, and Elsie climbed over it easily. She let down the window behind her. The floor gave back an empty sound beneath her feet as she walked across it to the kitchen. The kitchen, too, was quite uninvited.

After the dining room came the parlor, the room that in aunt Hope's lifetime Elsie had always loved best. It was a good sized room in the front of the house. She lifted a window and turned the slats of the closed shutters. The yellow afternoon light came in across the bare floor. Innumerable motes danced in the air. Upon the walls a few old pictures still hung, and the wall paper showed fresh spaces upon its faded surface where others had been.

Elsie sat down upon one of the appealing chairs and clasped her hands in their riding position about her knee. There was a chill of fireless and stale air in the room, but she did not feel it. She was thinking of the last time she had been in the room and many people. In the midst lay aunt Hope, always so gracious and gentle, so quick to respond to the love of her friends and neighbors. Her hands were crossed upon a flower; her lips smiled a new little smile of understanding of the ways and of God's. Above the hushed sound of tears rose a dignified voice: "I am the resourceful one."

How vividly she remembered it all! She had sat there and he had sat there with aunt Hope between. And though they both looked at each other tearfully they would not look at each other. How pale he had been! And, perhaps, she, too, had been just as pale.

Under her veil. Well, it was over. Of what was she to regret? Yet Elsie knew how anxiously aunt Hope had longed for them to be friends again, how strongly she had advised their making up their foolish quarrel.

"You are both young and high time," she had pleaded again and again, "but there'll come a time when you'll be old and remorseful unless you make up now. Why, you are made for each other. Elsie, you'll never be happy with anyone else, nor will David. He's a splendid young fellow. Don't know? Wasn't you born, and haven't I watched him grow up from baby to man? And haven't I watched you grow up, too? And I love you both. I've tried to have you care for each other because I felt that as it should be. And now you've let this little trollop of a Doris Kennedy come between you! Oh, I know what folks say about me—that I am a meddling old matchmaker!"

"Well, then, peace-maker," Elsie had said. "Blessed you know what the Bible says. But I ain't sure of that unless you'll let me make peace between you and David!"

"Some day," Elsie had half promised. That was a year ago. Then had met at aunt Hope's funeral and had not spoken. Afterward David had gone back to the city to his work and Elsie had gone home to the country town. As far as she knew now, her marriage was ended. There was no aunt Hope to advise and gently smooth away the difficulties. It was up to Elsie to make a decision. It lingered with her like mingled myth and honey. She had loved David—she loved him still—and must go on loving him as long as she lived. But he had the Bennett treasure. He had it, too, far back somewhere, a couple of generations ago, a certain marriage had made them kin. She would not give up. Neither would he. And it was all because she had not liked his city cousin, Doris Kennedy, and he had not liked her. In her heart Elsie had been a bit jealous of the blonde young woman who looked as if she had been run in an exceedingly slender mold, and had never so much as bent her back since—an effect obtained, it was said, by means of an exacting dressmaker. Elsie was far too natural to admire Doris' immobility, loads of false hair and layers of pink and white powder she had told David so in a tone so pleasant way.

"But her heart is all right," he had argued, stoutly. "Doris is a good girl. The money, and you are envious of her, that's all."

"Envious!" cried Elsie, scarlet with rage. So the quarrel had begun.

As she sat there now in the empty room Elsie owned to herself sadly that she had been unreasonable. After all, Doris was David's cousin, and older than he. There had been no reason in the world for her being jealous—as she had been; yes, she had been jealous that now.

"If only I had listened to aunt Hope. If only I had let her make peace as she wished."

A crash at the lock of the house startled her. A window had fallen. She sprang to her feet. Steps were coming toward her through the house—heavy steps—a man's, and he was in the kitchen—now the dining room that opened into the little front entry. It was locked. She tapped at the window, Heaven! To be shut in this house with a tramp. Still tugging, with futile desperation, at the unyielding door she looked back over her shoulder just as the invader appeared in the parlor door—a tall young fellow in a respectable ulster, who looked almost as white and shaken as she knew she was.

"Elsie!" he exclaimed. "Great Scott! David!" she gasped. And half felt against the supporting door. They stared at each other, the color slowly coming back to their faces.

"Did you get in at the pantry window, too?" Elsie asked, when she could.

He nodded.

"I remembered that aunt Hope was always going to have it fixed and never did. What are you doing here, Elsie?" He came close to her.

"What are you?"

"I came because I had to. I felt as if I was being called."

"David! That's just the way I felt."

Their eyes sought each other's, awe-struck, wondering. Then their hands met.

"Forgive me, Elsie. I was wrong," he whispered.

"Forgive me, David. I was wrong, too."

They clung together.

"I didn't care for Doris. But she was my cousin."

"I know. I know."

She was in his arms now. And he had kissed her.

"David," Elsie said, from his shoulder, solemnly, "do you suppose—that?"

"Aunt Hope, drew us here today?"

"His eyes had the look of one who had been very, very tired."

"Who knows?" he answered, very low. "Blessed are the peace-makers!"

EMPIRE STATE OF BRAZIL

JOURNAL OF BRAZILIAN CATTLE, STATE OF SAO PAULO

Washington—Fully four and a half out of every five pounds of coffee drunk in the United States comes from Brazil, and the proportion is growing steadily higher, principally because the Brazilian bean is of a superior quality and flavor. The generality of coffee drinkers have a hard time of it. It is true that Sao Paulo alone, in the morning beverage, but it is a fact that all the Mocha and Java that reach this country in a year would not supply St. Louis for six months.

It is generally known and understood that the greater proportion of coffee, that is, coffee comes from the state of Sao Paulo in that country, and the statement that Sao Paulo, the richest state in the Brazilian Union, is "one vast coffee estate" has been made so frequently that the general impression has gone abroad that little else but coffee is produced in the state. It is true that Sao Paulo alone, last year, produced 1,718,000,000 pounds of coffee that had a value of $44,000,000, and that this vast aggregate found its way outward through the greatest coffee port in the world, Santos; but it is also true that Sao Paulo has a host of other industries that are developing at a rate that is astonishing. It is in Sao Paulo that the great wheat growing concessions have been granted; it is from Sao Paulo that the enormous shipments to Europe of live cattle will be made; it is Sao Paulo that now maintains three hundred factories engaged in a truly remarkable array of industries. These factories alone represent an investment of over $40,000,000 and are employing 50,000 workmen.

It is true that coffee is the staple, but these factories are turning out cotton and woolen fabrics; they are making rope, twines and papers. There are breweries, marble quarries, metal industries of various natures; vast estates that are devoted to the culture of rice, and square miles of territory that produce enormous quantities of fruits that are shipped in all directions. Sao Paulo has gone extensively into grape culture, and is turning out wine that are becoming very popular in several countries. Agriculture of a general nature has engaged the attention of the residents of the state to a greater degree in the last few years, and as a consequence the railways are extending in every direction throughout the state. As an indication of the volume of business transacted through the port of Santos it last year reached a grand total of five and a half million tons, which was paid very favorably with the trade of Rio de Janeiro or Buenos Ayres, the two largest South American ports.

There is a writer in New York who has achieved little success, but who, being amply supplied with worldly goods, refuses to be discouraged. So he keeps turning out books the merits of which he earnestly attests by word of mouth and heavy purchases from the publishers. He is a long time friend of Simeon Ford, nonpareil, and philosopher. That Mr. Ford is the only one who ever read all of his friend's books probably furnishes a reason why the attenuated hotel man and one of the most solemn looking of humans.

They were at dinner recently when the author said: "Simeon, you've been so kind to read my new novel, my real friend, for you've suffered like a friend and read all I have written. Sometimes I think that I have made a great mistake and I am not really an author after all."

"I think you're right," assented Mr. Ford. "You're a born chemist."

"How?" that suspiciously asked the author.

"Well," remarked Simeon, "every book you write becomes a drug on the market."

Putting it Up to Uncle.

He is a well-known New York lawyer, talking about domestic troubles, has had his share of the servant problem, though he won't admit it. However, he is frank enough to tell one on himself, as he did recently at the Waldorf-Astoria.

"We have a mighty good girl who got word that her uncle was dying. She asked to be allowed to go away for a few days and to the funeral. After a week had passed we commenced to get nervous. So a note was sent to her inquiring when she would be able to return and how her uncle was."

"We got a reply something like this: 'Dear Sir: I will be back as soon as possible. Uncle is getting weaker and weaker. My husband can't stay here much longer, and I know he doesn't want me to lose my job.'"

Admiration.

To adorn ourselves seems to be a part of our nature, and this desire seems to be so deeply implanted in our thing. I have sometimes thought that the desire for beauty covers the earth with flowers, paints the wings of birds, and gives the bird its plumage and its song. O, daughters and wives, if you would be loved, adorn yourselves. If you are to be admired, be beautiful—Robert G. Ingersoll.

Vanity of Life.

How small a portion of our life it is that we really enjoy. In youth we are looking forward to things that are to come. In old age we are looking backward to things that are gone past; in manhood, although we appear indeed to be occupied in things that are present, even that is too often absorbed in vague determination to be very happy on some future day when we have time.

Wife—What's the matter?

"The house is on fire, and we will be burned to death if we hesitate a moment. Run, run for your life!"

"Yes, I'll be out in a minute. I've got to tidy up the rooms a little so that it will look decent when the firemen get here."—Modern Society.

Thomas Hood's Oversight. Thomas Hood gave to literature the undying "Song of the Shirt," but he might have written an even sadder song, that of the washbowl. Easy Task laundry soap was unknown in his day. It is only for the last quarter century that it has been relieving women of backaches and bruised hands. It takes the dirt out of or off of anything, actually does most of the work itself. Your grocer has it.

Similarity. Eva—Then you are not fond of pressed flowers?

Jack—No, they always remind me of a kiss through a telephone.

Eva—Gracious! In what way?

Jack—They have lost their sweetness.
